

Protest against the EDL in Bradford

Stop the EDL in Bradford

The English Defence League is a violent street movement. It claims to peacefully protest against Islamic extremism, and that it is non-racist and non-fascist, but this is a lie. EDL demos in places like Luton, Nottingham and Dudley have seen racist violence and chanting, with Asian businesses and minicabs getting attacked, and mosques and even Hindu temples being targeted.

The next stop for the EDL is Bradford. The EDL is marching against "Islamic extremism" in the town. This is a blatant attempt to stir up racial hatred and violence against the Asian community.

The only way to stop the EDL and its attempts to attack and terrorise the Muslim community is to come out on the streets to stop them. The police have repeatedly failed to defend local communities and in fact defend the right of the EDL to march and spread their race hate.

REVOLUTION is organising people to attend Bradford on 28 August to take part in the demonstrations against the EDL. Our message is simple; the fascists must be given no platform from which to spread their violence. Wherever they go, racist violence follows. We can't rely on the state to look after us; it's the job of working-class and young people, no matter what race, no matter what religion, to defend our communities, demonstrations and meetings against the threat of fascist violence.
